

Eastern Metropolitan Region homelessness profile 2018

1,750 people are experiencing homelessness in this region.

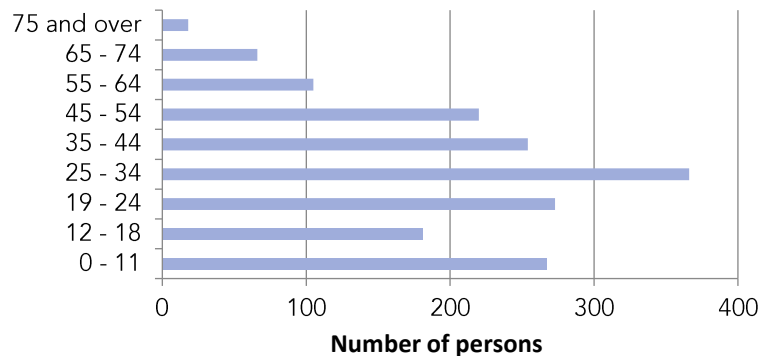

Homelessness affects 26 people per 10,000, compared to the Victorian average of 42 per 10,000.

The number of people experiencing homelessness is down from 2,000 in 2011, and 1,447 in 2006

Skyrocketing rents, low social housing stock and rising hardship is driving homelessness in every town and suburb across Victoria. But there are solutions to overcome the crisis.

With the right measures in place, we know that homelessness is preventable, early intervention achievable, and that keeping people housed is possible.

The Council to Homeless Persons has developed a blueprint for solving homelessness – the Victorian Homelessness Election Platform. Now we're looking for the political leadership to implement it.
